Range Officer (RO) Training Class Schedule for 2019

Classes will be held March 23 and September 14 to train new range officers and recertify existing RO's due for recertification in 2019. For new Range Officers, class prerequisites are

- You must be Range Approved for at least six months
- Have a Range Officer Certification Card signed by three Duty Range Officers while using the pistol range on separate occasions before the class
- Have successfully complete a test on the Range Rules prior to the class

Upon class completion, new Range Officer candidates must successfully serve as the Duty Range Officer during the live-fire portion of a Range Orientation Practical Training Class for new members held each month to receive their Range Officer credentials.

Existing RO's require recertification every five years, which consists of completing the RO Training Class and the pre-course test on the Range Rules. RO's requiring recertification in 2019 will be contacted in early January for their class date preference.

RO's are granted the privilege of using the rifle and pistol ranges (see the Range Rules for specific times) when a Duty Range Officer is not present on weekends. With the privilege of greater range access comes a responsibility—you must serve as a Duty Range Officer for a three- or four-hour weekend shift approximately twice each year.
